

Generated VMM has elements from both source and target that are associated according to the variability defined in the constraint specification

Indicates whether contained model objects capture structural or quantitative variability